CANADIAN VIEW OF THE WAR. - The South ern leaders are about to make their last effort to conquer the independence of the Confederate States. Their new levy is a levy en masse, including every man from 18 to 45 not disabled by bodily infirmity, and no sub- Christian Commission: stitutes to be accepted. The severity of this act affords abundant proof of the desperate position of the Confederacy. There is no choice left. If a man is bodily fit, he must fight whether he desires it or not, whether he is willing and able to pay a substitute or not. However pressing may be his business, however great may be the necessities of his

Suppose the North had not allowed the wealthy to find substitutes, and "Very respectfully and truly you that every man from eighteen to forty-five had been called into the field, could the draft have been enforced? Most certainly not upon the issue of the war than their Northern brethren, and will submit to greater hardships. But still there are limits to their endurance, and we fancy that the limit has been reached. Opposition to the war may says:

The entire coast of even these States, including Charleston and Savannah, may, before winter, be in the possession of the Federals. If we could imagine the Confederate Generals still continuing the war, next spring would witness a grand movement on Richmond from all points of the compass, and its capture as the conclusion of the war. We observe that the leading Administration paper in Washington reccommends that there shall be no advance toward Richmond this fall, but that Lee should be merely kept in occupation on the Rappahannock. If he advanced northward, he would be repulsed; if he sent his forces elsewhere, Richmond might then be assailed, but in the meantime the attacking strength of the North should be employed elsewhere. This seems to be sound policy. It the North had never attacked Lee's army at all, it would have been in a better position to-day. It is the only Southern army which can win victories, and, except the North can turn out as clever an officer as Lee, it ought to let that officer alone, till he can be assailed by overwhelming forces. To attack him now would be to run great risk of defeat, and also of encouraging the Confederates to renewed exertions in the Southwest, where they are now weak and where they should be kept down. This programme would bring the end of the war in ample time for the presidential campaign in the fall of 1864, and give Old Abe a chance of re election, for which he is said to be looking far more anxiously than befits him.

> CURIOUS DISCOVERY OF A MISSING WILL .-The Hartford (Conn.) Courant says:

George Martinson, a gentleman well advanced in years, and well known in this city, died some eight or nine months ago, leaving a handsome property. His heirs were his since, followed by their return southward widow and two or three children. There was also an adopted daughter. Careful search was made, but no will could be discovered; so the estate went into probate. The six month allowed were just expiring, and the next day the property was to be divided among the heirs. The Press says that day the widow noticed an old pair of pantaloons of her husband's hanging in the cellar way, and gave them to an Irish woman at work for her saying she could wash them up, and may be they'd be good for something. As she took them to the washtub she felt a paper in one of the pockets. It was the missing will Among the bequests it gave the house and lot, worth $5,000, to the adopted daughter.

BY AN order of the Court, made on the 3d day of July, 1863, this action was referred to the undersigned, as Commissioner, for the settlement of the estate of C. G. Graham, deceased. All the reditors of said estate are hereby notified and required to present their claims to the undersigned, roperly proven, on or before the 1st day of Oc-ober, 1863. L. HORD, July 24, 1863-t01. Commissioner.

The New York Riots

It is intimated that there are many indi cations of an intended renewal, by riotors, of New York, in case the draft should be enforced. It is said that the mischievious element is busily engaged forming opposition to the draft, and that, unless the Government is prompt to take measures for the enforcement of the law, it is feared by many tion in regard to this matter, it would be a shame and a disgrace to, not only, the nation, but to all who are invested with authority, if have its way, not only in opposition to law and constituted authority, but in the wholesale plunder, burning and murder which has characterized such demonstrations. We are no admirers of the motives which governed the men who originated the conscript law, having always believed it to be unnecessary; but, it having become a law, and having the Department of the Ohio, General Burnside Charles A Wickliffe, for governor. been already enforced in many parts of the nation, we are for its rigid, just and impar-'tial enforcement. Above all, in these times of civil commotion, when the worst influences and the worst men, are abroad, to work the ruin of the country, not only by their treason, but by their lawlessness, the Government ought to be doubly vigilant to crush the first manifestation of mobocracy, for it.

Side is evidently doing in a whole duty to the best of his ability, and the people honor him for it. wherever and whenever they may appear. This tendency to resist law is becoming too common, and, unless checked by a wise, firm It is an enemy to be feared-to be dreaded be worth half a dozen General Thomases yond all other enemies in a free nation. It becomes, in the hands of bad men, an enemy, against which every good citizen, every lover of order, every patriot, should set his face.

speeedily rectified by the proper authorities, and when this is done, let the law be rigidly enforced at whatever cost of money and to see it succeed it in the restoration slavery blood. Let law be upheld at all hazards, and let no mob be led to believe that it can, with impunity, set at defiance the Government and its authority.
